Year of The Dragon

Chinese New Year

Chinese New Year is the longest and most important festivity in the Chinese calendar, and is celebrated in all countries with significant Chinese populations, such as Mainland China, Hong Kong, Taiwan and in Chinatowns around the world.

Families traditionally gather for an annual dinner on Chinese New Year's Eve and will spend buy presents for family and friend. The doors and windows of homes are dressed with decorations made from red paper. The Chinese New Year celebrations focus on happiness, reconciliation, peace and longevity.

12 animals are used to name each year in the Chinese calendar. 2012 is the Year of the Dragon. The next year of the Dragon will begin on February 10 2024 in the Gregorian calendar.
