Zetex Fire Curtain

The theatre, which opened in 1904, is one of the country's leading cultural institutions.

Working with its premier Republic of Ireland dealer, Stage Lighting Centre, J&C Joel supplied and installed a Zetex Safety Curtain to Abbey Theatre in Dublin.

Inspired by the revolutionary ideals of Irish founders and the rich canon of Irish dramatic writing, the Abbey Theatre aims to imaginatively engage with all of Irish society through the production of ambitious, courageous and new theatre in all of its forms.

As with many traditional theatres, the original safety curtain material had a level of asbestos located within its composition, therefore, this had to be removed and replaced.

J&C Joel installed the new Zetex safety cloth and bottom smoke pad, then re-installed all aspects of the previous safety curtain. The Zetex Cloth has a one-hour fire rating, it can also be painted with specific Rosco paints to create a variety of designs.

At the completion of the work, extensive Maintenance tests were carried out for the Air Buffer, Steel Hauling, Cables, Counterbalance Cradle and the Motor Unit, which were all previously supplied by J&C Joel, to ensure the entire unit satisfied health and safety standards.
